Bethel looks for more revenue for its sewer budget

By ALISON ALOISIO

With sources of revenue drying up, Bethel officials are looking for ways to balance the town's sewer budget.

That could mean more charges for at least some users.

Selectmen last week heard a budget presentation by Town Manager Jim Doar and Wastewater Treatment Superintendent Rob Gundersen.

Tribute to the Farmer

Longtime Newry farmer Leslie Robertson, whose nickname was "Farmer," died last week of brain cancer. For years he had mowed the field in Bethel known as the Gateway Parcel, located on Route 26 just south of Bethel Village. On Saturday, the day of his memorial service at the Bethel Alliance Church just down the road, friends used his farming equipment to craft a fitting memorial on the Gateway field. Freeman Corriveau, Andrew and Rob Gundersen, with the help of Blake Farms, Carter Farms, Ed Swain and Jodi Gaudreau put the display together. Also helping were Les' daughter, Amy, and her cousin Tayna Knox. After the service there was a parade that included tractors from Carter's, Blake's, John Swan, and Robertson Farms, along with a log truck from Fred Curtis Logging to represent Robertson's logging work. Said his significant other, Linda Smith, "It is a wonderful tribute to a person who represents a dying breed. Also to a person who has touched so many lives not only in his everyday life, but in his battle with cancer." (Audrey Thibodeau)

Passenger rail projects outlined

Four proposals to possibly return passenger rail service between Portland and Montreal - one of which specifically describes a stop in Bethel - were outlined Tuesday in a press release provided by the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Androscoggin-Oxford-Coos Counties Corridor Committee (AOCCC), the lead group on projects to restore passenger rail to the western Maine region, will host presentations Sept. 4 in South Paris on the rail proposals.

"The AOCCC and its predecessors have found that its work to date is in support of a number of initiatives including proposed passenger rail service between Montreal and Boston on the SLR route," the press release said.

"Those of us who have been a part of this discussion and effort since 2007 or so are so pleased that we now have grassroots support from selectboards from Mechanic Falls to Bethel," Robin Zinchuk, executive director of the BACC, said Tuesday night. "The fact that we also now have two potential private investment groups seeking to make passenger rail through western Maine a reality is very exciting."

A short review of the projects follows, as described in the press release:

Disappearing gas prompts Andover to buy tracking device

By ALISON ALOISIO

Andover voters turned out last week to consider raising money to pay for a leaking fuel tank and buy a fire truck.

But most of the discussion ended up being about keeping track of the use of gasoline by town employees.

About 80 people attended last Thursday's special town meeting, which was called initially to deal with the aftermath of a leaking oil tank at the town garage.

The Department of Environmental Protection did the cleanup, and voters were asked to raise $12,000 to pay its share of that as well as buy and install replacement tanks and other items needed to ensure compliance with the state's mandated spill prevention plan.

When the time came to make the motion, selectboard Chair Susan Mer-row moved to amend the amount to $16,000 to add extra funds to more easily monitor which town departments are getting gas. The departments include Highway, Fire and Transfer Station.

Road Commissioner Marshall Meisner objected. "We scraped to the bare bones to get this $12,000 and I think this extra money is frivolous," he said. "The only other department that uses gas is the Transfer Station. If we want to do this, I think the money should come from the Transfer Station budget."

Wayne Delano also questioned the move.

"If we can't keep track of these three outfits I think we've got some serious problems," he said.

Replied Kevin Scott, "We've got some awful

Directional sign sales a go in Bethel

By ALISON ALOISIO

New highway and village business roadside directional signs in Bethel will have a three-week lead time for installation, following approval by selectmen last week of two sign contractors who will work together.

One highway sign panel will cost a business $675 for the sign and $160 for installation by the town, plus a $75 annual maintenance fee.

For a village business sign panel, the cost will be $300 for the sign itself, with the installation and maintenance costs the same.

The sign panels will be created by Ross Swan of Swan Screen Printing of Bethel, while the posts/assemblies will be provided by Ryan Mechanical Services of Rumford.

By having Swan and Ryan work together, the combined cost for one highway sign assembly with three panels/slots for three businesses will be $6,305, compared to the $8,525 bid ($1,200 per panel) offered by Neokraft of Lewiston, the other bidder in the process.

The costs for village sign packages under the two options were very similar.

The highway sign panels will be 84 by 20 inches, while the village ones will be 48 inches by 12 inches.

The town will pay for the posts/assemblies upfront, with the cost to be recovered over time through the maintenance fees, Town Manager Jim Doar said.

Bethel had tried through the summer to get bids for the sign work to go with its new ordinance, approved in June, but companies initially interested said the timeline the town was requesting was too short and they did not submit bids, according to town officials.

Neokraft said in its bid signs could not be ready until mid-October.

Selectmen also approved an amended sign application form at their meeting.

Woodstock temporarily puts brakes on Roadside Spring study

By ALISON ALOISIO

Woodstock selectmen decided last week to put plans for a hydrological study for the Roadside Spring on hold until they can meet with abutting landowners.

Members of the Woodstock Conservation Commission initially met with the board last week to discuss finding the remaining funding for the study.

Background

Last month the WCC's Marcel Polak brought three proposals to the selectboard for the study of the Route 26 spring.

The study would determine what protections in the wider area around the spring might be needed to preserve it over the long term.

Polak recommended consultant St. Germain-Colins of Westbrook with a bid of $2,900, the cheapest among those offered.

He said a grant is available to pay for part of the work, with the remaining $1,450 to be made up by the town.

The board discussed then whether one of two available town funds would be appropriate to use for that purpose.

An $80,000 fund that came from Patriot Renewables is to be used solely for land conservation, Polak said.

Another option was an account containing approximately $30,000 is funded through fees paid by developers applying for projects, generally for the benefit of the town.

The board eventually agreed to have the Planning Board make a recommendation on which fund to use, to bring back to se-

Bethel Recreation Soccer

K-2nd Grade: Bethel Recreation will offer the traditional Saturday morning soccer program for K-2nd grade players. Players must be a minimum of 5 years old or entering kindergarten in 2013. Participants will meet each Saturday from 9am to 10:30am at the lower field of Telstar High School. The program will start on Saturday, August 31st and run through October 19th. Sign up for K-2nd grade program at the town office by Friday, August 30th. $15 for Bethel residents.

3rd-4th Grade & 5th-6th Grade: Bethel will continue to offer older players an opportunity to grow their skills and play more soccer by representing Bethel in the Oxford Boosters League. We will compete in 2 age brackets: 3rd-4th grade and 5th-6th grade. Teams will practice (75-90 min) 2 times mid-week at the lower field of Telstar High School and play 2 games each Saturday afternoon against neighboring towns in the Norway area. The programs will start on Saturday, August 31st at 10:30am and go through October 19th. Sign up for the Boosters program at the town office by Friday, August 30th. $15 for Bethel residents.

PATHWAY BRIDGES IN POOR SHAPE

To the Editor:

I was the person that posted the two warning notices on the bridge after the Davis Park playground in Bethel. My wife fell on one of the three hand-rail bridges crossing the swamp. She broke her kneecap in several places and got a half-inch splinter in the palm of her left hand. I regret to say that all three bridges are in sad shape. The tripped-on southbound bridge had almost all the 2x6 planking exposed at the end. The thickness of the ends of the 2x6's ranged from one and three-eighths to one and one-half inches wide.

She has been flat in her chair since July 16, with a full-length splint on her left leg.

She lay on the bridge for five to 10 minutes. She had a young, fast-walking girl come by, but she didn't stop. Finally, a man walking his dog came by, but didn't stop at first. He went 50 to 100 feet and then came back. He said he thought that she was just waiting for someone. He got someone in a service uniform to carry her out to the parkway on the trail that runs up the hill.

PATHWAY BRIDGES

To the Editor,

The footbridges and snowmobile bridge on the Pathway at Davis Park are in need of repair; most of the many regular users have seen the hand-written note recounting a very sad and unfortunate injury and warning people to be careful. Town Meeting appropriated money to fix them this summer and repairs are under way. In the meantime, please be careful, particularly when crossing the foot bridges.

PARTY OF DISCORD

To the Editor:

In response to Harry Faulkner's "Conservative Not Racist" presentation. Being neither a pundit for, nor a patron of any political entity, I take no issue with a prudent degree of conservatism. I do have to agree with Mr. Faulkner that President Bush took his well-deserved no nonsense lumps for leading the nation into an unfunded war to eliminate weapons of mass destruction that never existed, and for allowing the gigantic financial institutions to bring this nation's economy to the brink of collapse. I would also have to agree with Mr. Faulkner that any five year old including myself would not have to hold their breath too long before they would be able to comprehend the racial, ethnic and gender bias espoused by the present day Republican establishment. All of the phony, trumped up scandals, the nation-wide effort at voter suppression would be indicative of a political party that was at odds with itself, out of touch with reality and not in keeping with a true concept of Democracy. I can understand and appreciate Mr. Faulkner's ire and consternation due to what his chosen party has evolved into. The incursion of the radical right wing Tea Party element has rendered the Republican Party a seething hornet's nest of intrigue, discord and thus not overly appealing to the majority of this nation's collective electorate. There exists an extreme possibility that in the process of the upcoming 2016 Presidential election, the Republicans may have to convert their racially biased tendencies to gender bias, and if that happens to occur all I can say to the Republicans is "good luck."

The most egregious part of Mr. Faulkner's letter was his contention that I referred to him as a racist. When one states something as being a fact, when they know that it is absolutely not a fact, that would constitute an instance of untruthfulness, and I think Mr. Faulkner would have to admit that I never mentioned his name in my letter.

HELP WITH MT. WILL TRAIL

To the Editor:

As you may have read in the Bethel Citizen a few weeks ago, volunteer crews have been working on improving the trail system on Mt. Will. The crews have created a major re-route for a gentler approach around the steepest ledges, as well as retiring some of the most eroded parts of the trail. The work is not yet complete, however, and we'd love to finish it before snowshoeing season. You're invited to help complete the job this Saturday, Aug. 31. Mike Cooper, trail designer and builder with Caribou Recreation, will lead a short trail-building workshop before we go to work on the trail section from the parking lot to the North Ledges. Iz Yankura, crew leader of the crew that did most of the work on the trail this summer, will be on hand as well. The goal is to finish and open the last major new section by the end of the day.

Please join us in the Mt. Will parking lot (across from the transfer station on Route 2) at 8:30 a.m. this Saturday. We expect the work to take until about 2 p.m. Bring loppers if you have them, lunch and water. Other tools will be provided.

The trail is on property owned by the Town of Bethel and several generous private landowners. We are lucky to live in a town that has such resources so close by, allowing us to get out and enjoy the beauty of our backyard. We estimate that, based on informal car counts, the trail sees more than 500 users each year. This project is a collaboration among the Town of Bethel, Mahoosuc Pathways, the Bethel Conservation Commission, and the Bryant Pond 4H Camp and Learning Center.

An Outward Bound crew put in a day of trail work as well. It is amazing how much work can get done in a relatively short amount of time when so many people chip in, so thanks to those who have helped us come this far.

Another opportunity to get out on the trail is at the end of the month when we plan to have a grand opening of the reconditioned trail on Friday evening, Sept. 27, as part of Great Maine Outdoor Weekend (greatmaineoutdoorweekend.org), an effort to get as many Mainers outside as possible doing a wide variety of free activities. Western Maine is the focus of this particular weekend so many local organizations are planning special events. We hope you'll take part with your favorite group or maybe try something new.

FOREST LODGE TOURS

To the Editor:

There has been much publicity lately about Forest Lodge, the former home of writer Louise Dickenson Rich, on Rapid River in Upton. Anyone interested in visiting the lodge to see the places described in "We Took to the Woods" and others of Rich's books may be interested to know that two tours of the area will take place in the next two weeks.

On Saturday, Aug. 31, Don Palmer, director of Oquossoc Sporting Heritage Museum, will lead trips by boat to Middle Dam from both South Arm and from Mill Brook with transportation to Forest Lodge. The following Saturday, Sept. 7, Upton Historical Society will conduct a trip by van from school house on Mill Road to Forest Lodge. Both tours require reservations and are being conducted as fundraisers for the respective nonprofit organizations.

To register for the Aug. 31 trip contact Don or Stephanie Palmer at the museum at 207-864-5647. The cost is $75 per person including lunch. For the Sept. 7 trip contact Charlotte Dominique in Upton at 207-533-2061. The cost is $65 per person and also includes lunch.

ALBANY IMPROVEMENT THANKS

To the Editor:

I'd like to thank everyone who made last week's events at the Albany Town Hall such a big success. At the "Vintage Clothing Luncheon and Talk," led by Norma Salway, more than forty avid participants enjoyed the wide variety of retro outfits Norma had on display and the luncheon organized by Buzzy Lapham. Those who donated their time and/or buffet items included Joan Kimball, Shelley Douglass, Brianna Douglass, Michaela Casey, Betty Gingras, Gretchen Fall, Margaret Barton, Yvonne Jellison, Sally Sawyer, Linda Champagne, Jim Mitchell, Laurie Reynolds and Ellen Marshall.

The "Albany Town Hall Music Revival," the brainchild of Brad Hooper, also drew an enthusiastic audience and considerable community support. Brad kicked-off the show, followed by The Milltown Road Show, Trailer Trash, and Donny Katlin and Jewel Clark. The volunteers who helped make the event possible were: Sally Sawyer, Jim Mitchell, Linda Champagne, Michaela Casey, Buzzy Lapham, and the Bethel Masonic Lodge.

Finally, thanks to Milltown Road Show lead singer Terry Swett and his wife Sandy, owners of Swett Signs of South Paris, for offering to donate a new sign for the Town House.

'How do you live on so little money?'

B.B. is not as fortunate as I. There are not many hand-me-downs that fit an over-six-footer. Business suits are not comfortable for active work. He scorns a patch, does not mind rips and holes, so he presents extremes in his appearance. Most of the time he is clad in rags, occasionally in impeccably tailored outfits. He helps me with my sewing projects, is a clever man with a pin for fitting places that I can't reach myself or for hanging a skirt. Not often do I do any sewing for him, but when I do it is always a trying occasion.

He studied the catalogs one fall. After a week, to my great surprise, he asked me if I thought that I could make a work jacket.

Most of the ones for sale were made of synthetics. To be sure they were lightweight, good windbreakers, somewhat warm. But all country people know that nothing takes the place of wool; even when water-soaked, it still provides warmth. I, having once made him a jacket years ago, was not too anxious, but agreed that if he had one that suited him, that was worn-out enough so that I would cut it up for a pattern. I would be happy to duplicate it, but he must choose the fabric himself.

He agreed, went to the alleyway that separates the shed from the barn. Here hung an assortment of garments, all of them "gone by," as we say in the locale, but useful for very dirty work. He tried on all of them; not one was exactly what he wanted. I did nothing.

A few days later he had another idea. He had four or five dress topcoats, had little use for even one. He appeared in a loose gray cashmere with raglan sleeves, stooped, twisted about, waved his arms. This was cut with enough ease so that it would be comfortable for a work jacket if I could cut off the bottom. This I could and did do at once, to even his satisfaction.

Then I had an idea; why not use the cut-off bottom pieces to make a hood. I went about looking over all the hoods on old garments, made a newspaper pattern. It was surprising how little actual cloth there was to work with. I basted my creation together, then waited for a chance to try it on B.B. before stitching it and attaching it to the jacket. The day came, I stood on a chair to be able to reach and pin properly any changes needed. B.B. looked in the mirror; he did not like it. In truth, neither did I.

The only thing to do was to design a hood from what pieces of cloth were available, fit and pin it on his head. He stood patiently a few minutes, then began to fidget. "Don't move," said I. "It is hard enough for me to work up here next to the ceiling in the heat without you wiggling." "If you're hot, what do you think of me? I'm just as near the ceiling as you and my head is all swabbed up in a mess of wool cloth and pins." "Stand Still!" demanded I again. "I am." "You are not."

"It is obvious to me that you don't know what I want, and that you don't know how to make a hood anyway." "Child to child," said I, climbing down from the chair; "Take the jacket off; we'll forget the hood."

B.B. wore the jacket, liked it much. Colder days came. Meanwhile I had been experimenting with pieces cut from old sheets. One morning after breakfast before the house had really warmed up, I suggested that I would like to try once more to make a hood, that this time I actually would cut the hood to fit the cloth. B.B. agreed to give me ten minutes.

I pinned, I basted, and it worked. In fact, it came out so well that I even made a green tassel to ornament the tip. The winter work jacket problem was solved forever. So we thought but alas, his other topcoats had set-in sleeves, much too binding for active work. Now I am on the lookout at rummage sales for an extra large dress coat with raglan sleeves.

Canadian Province of Québec is conducting an assessment of operating a passenger rail service between Montreal and Boston, Mass. referred to as "the Night Train" or "Hotel Train." The concept is based on a service departing Montreal at dinner-time. The train will consist of a locomotive, multiple dining cars, lounge car(s), a coach and up to nine (9) sleeper cars. The operation will be at night and, based on current track conditions, will travel at allowable speeds perhaps not to exceed that of freight train operations on the route. By traveling at night, passengers will not be impacted by the longer travel times as they dine, lounge and sleep on the way.

The train is expected to arrive at the Portland Transportation Center in time for connection to the early morning Amtrak Downeaster service to Boston. Upon arrival in Boston travelers, be they for business or tourism will have a fresh morning start to their day. That evening the train will return north to Montreal, switching again from the Downeaster in Portland and arrival in Montreal the beginning of the next day.

The train is expected to make one stop in Bethel and possibly one in Sherbrook, Canada (Quebec). Passengers coming from Montreal will be able to depart at Bethel and Portland as well as the Amtrak Downeaster stations along the route. Passengers from Maine will have opportunities to board at the Downeaster stops, and in Bethel for service to Montreal. Evaluations of the service proposal are underway. Plans are for an inaugural trip in June 2014.

The Golden Eagle Railway
Golden Eagle Railway Corporation's planned regional passenger rail service is gaining momentum. Presentations to members of this committee and town/city officials from Auburn to Berlin, N.H. have brought a groundswell of political and popular support including written endorsements. A meeting with Portland officials on the introduction of Portland

Auburn/Lewiston commuter rail service was also encouraging for the future.

A revamped version of our planned re-introduction of the Montreal-Portland/Boston luxury service tentatively named 'L'Acadienne' is well into the planning stage. The cars for this and the regional trains will be updated at our shops and other rail facilities. Negotiations for passenger rail operating rights are underway. Golden Eagle routes and stops are subject to negotiations and will be released once an agreement has been signed with the host railroads.

Maine-Owned St. Lawrence & Atlantic Portland to Auburn
Based on the MeDOT Portland North Alternate Modes Project study (August 2011) the Maine Rail Transit Coalition issued a report in March 2013 that initiated a Legislative Resolution directing the MDOT to seek funding for final engineering and environmental work for the reconstruction of the Maine owned railway between Portland, Maine at the Ocean Gateway facility to as far as the Auburn Municipal Airport. The proposal adopts the MDOT study reports for operating modern Diesel Multiple Unit (DMU) passenger rail cars on the rail line with eventual connections to Oxford and Coos Counties.

In addition to the MDOT directed resolution, the legislature directed MDOT to initiate a study group to evaluate all rail lines in the state for their potential for expansion of passenger rail. Both the funding study and legislative rail plan are expected to be completed by the end of the current legislative session.

Service Development Plan Northern New England Passenger Rail Authority
NNEPRA, Maine's rail authority, funded a service development plan in 2011 for expansion of Amtrak service to this region and eventually Montreal. For more information and background on the rail effort, see this story at www.bethelcitizen.com

At last week's selectmen's meeting WCC member Jim Chandler said the conclusion was that neither fund was appropriate. That prompted a discussion by selectmen.

But a wider-ranging discussion by the selectmen also took place, with concerns about the study involving private property rights, as well as about the need to maintain a good relationship with the Giunta family, which owns the property on which the spring sits.

Use of funds
Chandler said the $80,000 is intended for purchases of large areas of land, and drawing on it now would take away from that.

"It seems like that would be more like for a Buck's Ledge, or if we did find that from the study that if there are large areas that if they were fully developed, would impact the spring, that might be appropriate for conservation easements or something of the sort," he said.

Selectman Steve Bies disagreed. "It's for land conservation purposes only, and even though this is water, it seems very much land-based to me. It does seem entirely appropriate."

Chandler said the fund had its origins in concerns about visual impacts on state land from the wind project, and would be "for mitigating for that kind of an impact - for easements or purchases."

The spring study, he said, "is getting information about a resource."

As for the focus of the study, Chandler said "the scope of the survey is not just that little piece of land. That land, for the near future, is protected. By calling that a public water source, there are some limits within 300 feet of the wellhead. Our concern is beyond 300 feet. Where does this water come from, and what are the land uses that could negatively impact it? What steps need to be taken to ensure the water quality that we've enjoyed for so many years?"

Selectman Ron Deegan asked for clarification if the $80,000 fund would be appropriate to purchase land to protect the spring, if needed, should such land come up for sale.

Maxfield was tasked with identifying property owners to include.

Chandler said he believes purchase or an easement would be appropriate.

Jane Chandler, also a WCC member, noted the good relationship with the Giuntas and expressed her appreciation for their pledge not to sell their land.

But, she said, "it's not written into the deed that it will be forever protected."

Landowner concerns
Picking up on her point, Town Manager Vern Maxfield said, "I've heard, that being the case, that we shouldn't be putting town money into land we don't own."

Jim Chandler pointed out that the town already spends money on the spring, in the form of water quality testing and minor maintenance of the pipes.

Selectman Steve Bies worried about the reaction of other surrounding landowners to a study.

"By trying to make a public issue on a private piece of land, are we necessarily rubbing someone the wrong way?" he asked. "It would be to the town's benefit to get an easement, but I don't feel it should be our goal to get an easement because that's somebody else's decision entirely. What really matters is the relationship with the Giuntas. It matters more than that there's no easement. That's what really needs to be preserved."

The WCC members reiterated the importance of the relationship with the Giuntas.

Jim Chandler also said a study would likely not be invasive of the surrounding land, and would look "at the lay of the land and how underground water sources function, and what could potentially affect the source."

Polak said he could find out if a hydrologist would need to go onto property to do the study. If that were the case, he said, it would only happen with landowner permission.

Deegan then suggested that before proceeding with a study, the board and WCC meet with landowners in the area surrounding the spring, in order to explain the study and get their feedback.

Maxfield was tasked with identifying property owners to include.

SEWER

"There's nothing ever good about the sewer budget any more," said Doar. "We raised the rates by 5 percent two years ago and we're still looking at deficits."

The system underwent an expansion in the 1990s in anticipation of a Bethel Station project that didn't materialize, leaving users to fund the larger system.

There are 537 users in Bethel, and the proposed FY14 budget is $1,723,965. Projected revenues are $1,706,276 (including grant funds for projects), leaving a gap of $17,689.

The difference can be made up through the interfund balance (undesignated surplus).

But that can't go on forever, Doar said.

Add to that a raise request from Gundersen of 7.5 percent (to bring his and another employee's pay up to the range of other comparable area treatment plants) and a $276,000 project proposed for FY15 to replace the Bridge Street main.

The Bridge Street project, said Doar, could double the current sewer rate. The typical operating budget for the department is around $400,000, he said.

Gundersen had some ideas to find more revenue.

The town is allowed to charge its user fees per dwelling unit, but some older multi-apartment buildings in town are still charged as a single unit, he said.

He estimated at least 20 such buildings, which together could generate about $10,000 more.

"The newer buildings are being charged now," he said.

Another option would be to lower the number of cubic feet of water needed to trigger an additional charge.

Currently users pay $121.35 per quarter for usage of 0 to 1,500 cubic feet. If more water is used the charge is $8.09 per 100 cubic feet.

Gundersen said there are more than 340 users "way below the minimum," and even if the 1,500 cubic feet were dropped to 1,200, "people on fixed income and not using much water won't see an increase."

There would still be 300 users below 1,200, he said.

The drop would increase revenue by about $5,000.

Lowering the threshold to 1,000 cubic feet could generate $10,000 to $15,000 more in revenue, he said.

The charge for more than 1,000 cubic feet would be about $12/100 cubic feet, he said.

Doar added that currently single-person homes are getting billed "for much more consumption than they use, and they're subsidizing four-person families."

He also acknowledged that to date "we've shifted a lot of the burden to second home owners."

Highest users include motels and hotels, he said.

The selectmen decided to table a decision on the budget until their next meeting to study it further and to allow Gundersen to gather more information on the potential for additional dwelling units to bring into the fold.

In other business last week, selectmen awarded a bid to construct a new terminal building and do other improvements at the Bethel Airport to Glen Builders of Conway, N.H.

The bid was $663,581 (engineering not included).

The airport will get a $750,000 federal grant over two years to go toward the work.

Doar said the airport is also looking to add $39,840 to bring all electrical components into the terminal.

Work is expected to start in mid-September and be mostly done by winter.

PET OF THE WEEK:
Hi! I'm Clyde!

Look at my face and tell me I'm not the most irresistible dog you've ever seen. I'm 5 years old. I love to play and roll in the grass. I'm the first dog to bark a hello to visitors. I like to play fetch and chase my small dog friends; but my passion is sniffing everything. Give me your undivided attention and I'll give you a kiss. I walk well on leash and know basic commands. Let's face it, I'm the ideal best friend.
Responsible Pet Care of Oxford Hills is a no-kill, non-profit shelter and adoption center for cats and dogs; and the holding area for stray dogs for 12 towns in Oxford County. The shelter has moved to a new location at 9 Swallow Road in Paris.
Anyone interested in adopting a pet from RPC can visit the shelter Tuesday-Sunday 12-4 p.m. Most of the adoptable pets and the adoption application can be found online on the shelter's website at www.rpc.petfinder.com.

AUG 29 2013

Andover voters raise their cards to vote on an amendment to add $4,000 to an article on replacing a gas tank at the Town Garage, in order to add a tracking mechanism for gasoline use.

(A. Aloisio)

short memories in this room. It wasn't more than five years ago when the Budget Committee came across $8,000 or $9,000 in C.N. Brown invoices for gasoline in a town that has gasoline lawnmowers. We have diesel highway trucks and fire trucks, and we're going through eight or nine thousand dollars worth of gasoline."

He said the monitoring system would "ensure the taxpayers that their money is going to be looked out for. I don't think it's a big burden for someone to push two or three buttons to get their gas."

Meisner reacted strongly. "Where the gas went I don't know. This makes me think that someone's insinuating that I'm dishonest and I take offense to that. As far as I know there's nobody dishonest in the Highway Department or Transfer Station."

Rick Mills favored monitoring.

"This town is crazy if they don't know where every ounce of their gas is going," he said.

Fire Chief Rob Dixon said if the system were to be implemented, it should also include the diesel tank.

But Scott said there has never been a concern about the use of diesel fuel.

Morrow said only three identification numbers would likely be needed to track gas use.

The amendment was approved by a 46-26 vote, and voters went on to easily approve the main motion.

Fire truck

Voters then spent about 10 minutes discussing the fire truck proposal, which AFD Assistant Chief Ken Dixon got on the warrant by circulating a petition.

The proposal was to buy a 1995 ladder truck for $100,000 to replace the town's 1975 one.

A similar article was defeated at the March annual town meeting, but Dixon said last week he didn't think the idea had been given "due consideration."

"I feel strongly it's an opportunity not to be neglected," he said.

But as in March, several voters said that with the town's current process to potentially withdraw from SAD 44 and run its own school system, there is too much financial uncertainty to make such a large purchase now.

The article was overwhelmingly defeated.

Several announcements were also made at the meeting:

At 6 p.m. Sept. 4 an Open House will take place at the Andover Elementary School to meet the new teaching principal; Members are being sought for a cemetery committee;

The Comprehensive Plan Committee will hold its first meeting in September.

Briefly

Hunts Corner Road closure

A section of Hunts Corner Road is expected to be closed temporarily in mid-September, Oxford County Administrator Scott Cole told County Commissioners last week. Cole said Monday there are currently two six-foot diameter metal culverts crossing the road, one at Barton Road and one at Stearns Road. "Both have been in place an estimated 50 years. The upper one has been repeatedly overwhelmed in recent years causing extensive road damage. Both are now scheduled for replacement in September with three-sided concrete culverts. This is major work and must be done ahead of next year's reconstruction of Hunts Corner Road." The new culvert openings will be six feet high and 12 feet wide, more than doubling flow capacity and safeguarding the road against washouts, Cole said. County officials are expected to soon post official notice that the road will be closed to through traffic for a three-week period, from Sept. 9 - 30.

No easy fix for Woodstock boaters

By ALISON ALOISIO

The closing of a private boat landing that had been open to the public on North Pond in Woodstock has left boaters concerned and selectmen wondering what to do.

The landing was on the Gore Road, Town Manager Vern Maxfield told the board at their meeting last week.

"A lot of people were using it over the years, at least the last two or three," he said.

Maxfield said the property owner had had some concerns about liability issues if anyone were to be hurt at the landing, prompting the closure.

That leaves only the landing on Route 26 near the Rocky Road intersection.

"We're getting complaints from boaters because they'd rather not use the one on 26," said Maxfield.

Planning Board Chair Jennifer Chase said Route 26 is a bad place to back a boat into the water.

Because of that problem, said Maxfield, "A number of people are going to be after us to consider working with Greenwood on finding a common boat landing place."

But, he said, "To put in a boat landing in accordance with the state would we would have to have at least an acre. You have to have parking and a place to turn the boat around. We've got a mess on our hands for 20 boats a year."

Added Maxfield to laughter, "We could get rid of Johnny's Bridge (in Greenwood) and have two beautiful boat landings."

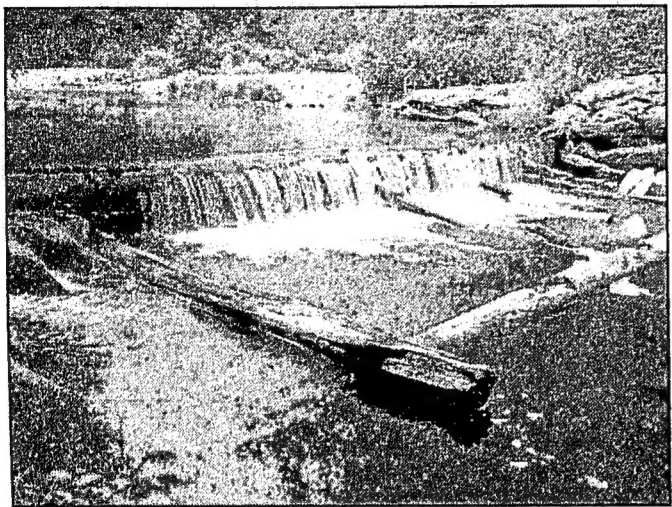

Sunday River dam will be dismantled

BY JEFF STERN

A remnant log driving dam on the mainstem of the Sunday River that blocks brook trout movement upriver to a network of headwater streams is scheduled to be dismantled Sept. 5-6.

This removal project is a collaborative effort between the Androscoggin River Watershed Council (ARWC), Maine Department of Inland Fisheries & Wildlife, and SHARE. It is funded by a grant from the Eastern Brook Trout Joint Venture, which is a private-public partnership dedicated to improving and enhancing brook trout habitat throughout the eastern United States. The grant is administered by the Androscoggin Valley Soil & Water Conservation District in Lewiston.

Long ago, log driving dams were built on many rivers and tributary streams in western Maine to flush logs down from the mountains. Over time, most of these dams have deteriorated to the point they no longer impede fish passage. Others washed away completely.

But the base structure of this old log driving dam on the Sunday River has remained remarkably intact. It creates a three to four foot drop that spans the width of the river. Depending on water level, it can block brook trout movement.

The site was identified as a priority for removal during a 2011 barrier assessment in the Sunday River and Bear River Watersheds that was conducted by ARWC. The assessment looked at barriers to fish movement such as crushed and hanging ("perched") culverts, dams, road crossings and bridges. This site stood out because it blocks access for trout to an estimated four miles of the Sunday River's headwater streams, as well as to the mainstem of the Sunday River above Riley Township. All of these waters have the potential to provide excellent brook trout habitat. As the impacts of global warming worsen, access to cooler waters in high elevation streams will provide important refuge from hot summer weather for brook trout.

Project partners plan to use a grip hoist Sept. 5-6 to dismantle the dam, weather permitting. The dam is on the Mahoosuc Unit Public Reserve, which is managed by the Maine Bureau of Parks and Lands.

The Way I See It

By Sharon Bouchard

I was listening to the radio on my way to work the other morning as I usually do. The morning show deejays are a man and a woman who, as well as playing music, carry on about some really insipid issues.

I rarely pay attention, but this particular morning's subject caught my ear. They were talking about landline telephones and the people who had them were dinosaurs. I was so offended to hear such a statement that I darn near went off the road.

The insipid deejays' contention was that everyone under the age of 60 had cell phones and only old people would cling to their antique landline telephones. This was said in such a way as to make one feel that anyone over 60 is a feeble minded dinosaur.

I guess that would be me because I am over 60 and I do have a landline telephone. I do not have a cellphone. Well, actually I do have a Tracfone, but I don't know where it is and the minutes I put on it have long ago expired.

The thing about my antique landline telephone is that I never have to recharge it and unless someone is calling me from a cellphone I never experience dropped calls or bad reception.

My telephone bill is the same low monthly charge every month unless I make some long distance calls. I've probably made no more than ten long distance calls in the past year and my charge is a mere 5 cents a minute. I did not have to sign a contract.

By comparison, everyone I know with cellphones pays more than triple what I pay and usually much, much more. I've heard some real horror stories regarding unbreakable contracts.

I have never caused an accident while talking or texting on my antique landline telephone.

I may be an over 60 dinosaur, but...

I have never been rude to anyone during a conversation by whipping out my antique landline telephone to answer it or read/send a text message.

I have my telephone number listed in a phone directory. I'll admit, phone directories aren't what they used to be since you need three or four of the darn things to cover all the telephone companies in one area, but my number is readily available through calling 411. If you don't happen to know someone's cell phone number, you're out of luck. There is no cell phone directory that I know of.

Yes, there are some advantages to cellphones and I admit that. They are a convenient way of contacting someone at any time whether they are at home or on the road, especially in the case of an emergency. Teenagers no longer have a valid excuse why they couldn't call home when they're going to be late. Now when I'm walking around the supermarket talking to myself people don't immediately assume that I'm off my rocker. They just assume that I have a Bluetooth device and I'm talking on a cell phone.

However, I really don't think these conveniences are enough for me to give up my antique landline telephone. I'm pretty partial to it and it matches the color scheme in my kitchen. I think I have only changed my antique landline telephone once in over 20 years. For God sake, I know some people who change their cellphone as frequently as they change their underwear!

I may be an over 60 dinosaur, but I think I have it all over the cell phone lovers with my antique landline telephone. You may disagree with that, which of course is your right. If you choose you can even call me and tell me why. My number is in the phone directory and the way I see it, it would be one call that will not get dropped, at least not from my end.

At 12:29 a.m. a report was received of cows in the road on the Intervale Road in Bethel. Deputy Peter Casey was assigned.

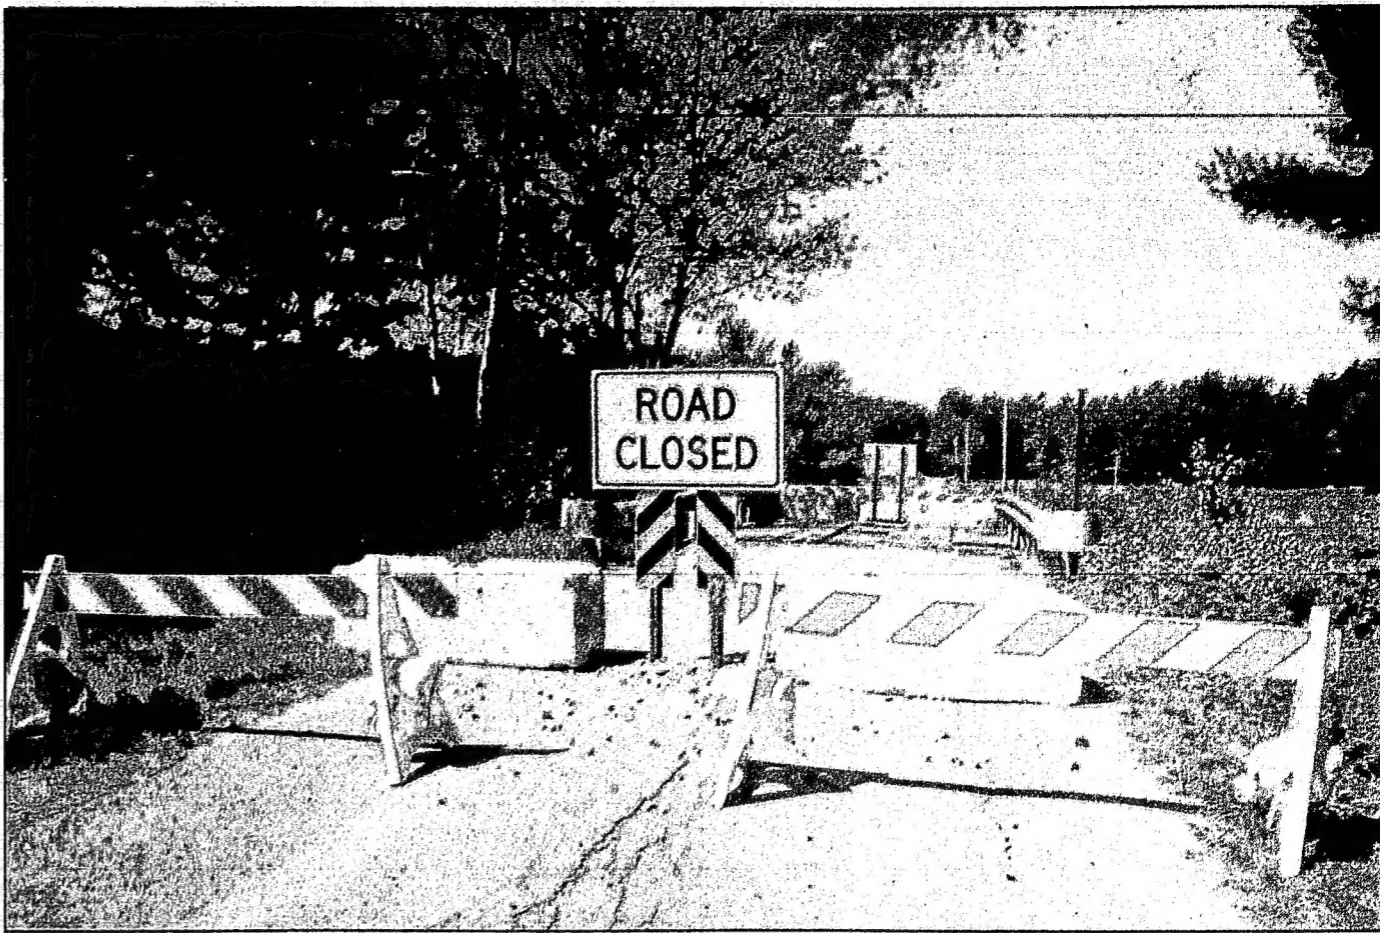

Sunday, Aug. 25

At 1:21 a.m. Deputy Willie Nelson investigated a disturbance on Railroad Street in Bethel.

At 12:22 p.m. a caller in Bethel reported being assaulted the night before. Deputy Dani Welch was unable to make contact but passed the information to another deputy who had previously dealt with the complaint.

Monday, Aug. 26

At 7:58 a.m. and 8:11 a.m. Capt. Chris Wainwright conducted concealed weapon background checks on Vernon Street in Bethel.

A bridge on the Old West Bethel Road in Albany is in poor condition and has been temporarily closed for the past few weeks, following an inspection by Oxford County Administrator Scott Cole and a representative from Maine Department of Transportation. This "lower" or southerly bridge (of the two on this piece of road) will remain closed while the pros and cons of repair versus permanent closure are weighed, Cole said Monday. "It is likely that the bridge will continue to be closed through winter and into 2014," he said. "Regardless of what happens to this bridge, the paved portion of road north of this bridge, which is in rough shape, will be improved. All access to residences on Old West Bethel Road will be via Route 5 and Patte Brook Road until further notice." (A. Aloisio)

Sewer Budget

At Wednesday's selectmen's meeting, the outlook for major capital expenses to be incurred next year covered replacing the Chapman Street main, 1,286 feet; replacing the Vernon Street pump station and main; replacing the Mill Hill pump station and constructing a new dewatering system and garage at the waste water treatment plant. The estimated expense for these major projects comes to $1,228,000. As shown on the prepared revenue and expenditure report the coming fiscal year would be short of revenues by $17,689. That is not the end of the story but discussion centered on adjusting minimum rates by volume and employee compensation.

The board wanted to extend the discussion to another meeting so that other options could be prepared for consideration. Rate payers now face a significant rate increase because in simple terms there is more system to pay for than there are customers to pay. But that is another story from 15 years ago.

The Sign Makers

Also at Wednesday night's meeting of selectmen a bid from Swan Screen Printing of Bethel, allied with Ryan Mechanical Services of Rumford for making town directional signs for placement either on the highway (large) or in the village (smaller) was accepted. The other bidder was Neokraft Signs Inc. of Lewiston. Since the sign dimensions, content and construction were specified by the town the only variable for consideration was price. Selectmen voted to accept the Swan/Ryan combination.

The sign format consists of a header with logo and one, two or three slats. The Swan/Ryan bid for a highway sign made up of a header (with a new Bethel logo) and three slats was $6,305.50 and Neokraft's bid for the same sign was $8,525. Final appearance and location of these signs will be a wait and see affair. Each slat or panel can have one or two lines of information, plus a universal graphic depicting the owner's function, food, lodging, etc. and distance from the sign to the site.

Poles holding these sign arrangements will be 11 feet 8 inches above the ground. To see illustrations of these signs look at the Bethel Web site and click on Roadside Directional Sign Graphics. This Web page has been available since April 2013; however, when voters at the annual town meeting voted to approve the sign ordinance changes these pages showing sign illustrations were not part of the package. So I wonder if voters will feel that they voted for something not fully explained. Sign pictures are part of the Bethel Journals news for this week.

At the Airport

Thursday Ashton and I went to the airport to take photos of the soon to be removed terminal building inside and out. Bethel has received a grant of $600,000 to construct a new terminal building, apply non-precision pavement markings, enhanced taxiway centerline markings and surface painted holding position markings at the Bethel Regional Airport. Glen Builders of New Hampshire will do the terminal construction.

Due to Col. Sydney Dyke's initiative Bethel Airport became part of the National Airport Plan in 1965. In 1967, the year after Col. Dyke died in a plane crash, the town named the airport for him. From 1968 to 1975, Richard Davis and then Robert Lowe managed the airport. In 1975 town manager Elwyn Dickey became airport manager. In 1988 when the old runway known as 12-30 was closed and the new (present) runway 14-32 opened, the terminal building was not moved to its present location. In 1995 when Dan Bilodeau and Steve Whitney were the Fixed Base Operators the "terminal" was still near the old runway. In November 1995 the Bethel Airport Authority was created by a referendum vote.

On Aug. 23, 2011, there were 12 aircraft based at Bethel Airport, nine were single engine and one was a multi engine craft; there were two Ultralights based at the airport. In the last two years, the airport authority has reported about 2,000 arrivals and departures annually. Talking with one of the plane owners

Twenty-six solar electric panels were installed last week on the south-facing roof of the Mill Hill Inn in Bethel by ReVision Energy. According to information provided by the company, the panels will produce about 8,500 kilowatt hours of energy annually, offsetting 11,144 pounds of carbon dioxide emissions. "I've always been aware of the orientation (elevated and southern facing) of this building and since day one I intended to go solar, that roof should be a solar factory," said inn owner Woody Hughes. "It feels good to be a 'producer' - sunny days take on a new meaning, with greater value. I want to have a very efficient building and this goes hand in hand with all the decisions I've made to date: new windows last year, blown in insulation this year and next, tankless hot water heaters, now solar panels that will reduce my conventional use by 40 percent. Doing something that is within my reach."

last week he remarked about the airport's popularity due to low airplane fuel prices. He noted that the good gas price brings in more planes to refuel which in turn gives the airport authority better numbers when they apply for FAA grants.

The new terminal building may be completed before we leave for Florida in late November.

Trapper's Weekend
Last weekend's beautiful weather must have boosted the spirits of the many families and groups who make Neil Olson's Trappers Weekend an annual must visit. Ashton went with me and after he had taken in the layout and seen what was going on, he had the bright idea of getting a small bottle of skunk scent as a joke gift for a special friend of his. It seems like most of the trapping goods vendors handling wild animal scents group the tents together because they were easy to find just from the area's aroma.

We ended up making the deal at a large layout from Orwigsburg, Pa. - a Raw Fur Buyer. The owner had a choice of a $20 bottle or a $5 one. Ashton thought that was great and bought the $5 bottle.

Steve Stone from Bethel had his chainsaw carving and rustic furniture spread in the usual spot. Steve was also driving a tour tractor and trailer with visitors sitting on bales of hay as they traveled over the rutted roadways in the large field parking area.

As always these week-ends seem to be very social affairs for the many groups and vendors who attend.

Inside the fairgrounds there was a large billboard size frame with vinyl posters from Oxford Casino, Cabela's, and Trapper's Post, "The Pulse of North America's Trapping Industry" published by Bob Noonan, and the largest sign of all, Olson's Furs - Tents - Baseball.

A slide show of photos with interesting characters and setups will be on YouTube after Aug. 27, look for Trappers Weekend 2013.

Stan Howe's Retirement Party
Sunday afternoon off Broad Street, under a large tent, and accompanied by fine weather, an appreciative crowd of about 60 people heard many accolades expressed for Stan Howe's 39 years as Executive Director of the Bethel Historical Society. While he received political best wishes from various elected officials, the real guest of honor who could speak with long time authority of Stan's career was Earle G. Shettleworth, Jr., Maine State Historian. Mr. Shettleworth has provided guidance and professional advice to Stan and the Bethel Historical Society since Stan became museum director in 1974.

Mr. Shettleworth spoke at length of Stan's work both here and throughout Maine. Nancy Stowell White, newly elected president of the society, gave a brief account of Stan's long, broad involvement in Maine and local history. Cathy Newell, also one of the afternoon's speakers, was one of only a very few in the audience who was involved with the historical society at the time of Stan's accepting (after a little gentle arm twisting) the offer to be its first director. At that time the late Margaret Tibbetts was the society president.

Late Sunday afternoon my mother and I took a road trip along Route 113 through the Evans Notch section of the White Mountain National Forest. The narrow road begins in Gilead and follows the Wild River past dozens of hiking trails. In August 2011 tropical storm Irene resulted in large blow downs, damaged trails, and the destruction of the suspension bridge near the Hastings Campground. We were excited to see that crews are working on the construction of a new bridge on the site of the old suspension bridge. Although the trees in the forest are still dark green, we did see a few red-leaved maples in low-lying wet areas along Route 2.

This time of year we usually see hundreds of orange-and-black monarch butterflies emerging from their chrysalises, and then flying off to join millions of other monarchs in their migration to Mexico. Conservation groups and the World Wildlife Fund have reported that the monarch population is slowly decreasing due to destruction of the monarch's habitat by over-logging in Mexico, climate changes, and destruction of milkweed by herbicides. In the past few weeks, two teachers have asked me to help find caterpillars for classroom projects. Many of us probably remember these projects where we watched caterpillars munch on milkweed, then create a chrysalis, and later emerge as a butterfly. I've searched the milkweed plants in my backyard, along roadways and railroad tracks, and in old mill yards and found no eggs or caterpillars yet this year. Wildlife experts don't think the monarch will totally disappear, but we can help rebuild the population by protecting its habitat. In this area that means protecting the milkweed from herbicides and cutting. Milkweed is the only food that monarch caterpillars eat.

With the exception of providing a missing guardrail at the brook near Telstar, the road crews have finished work on Route 26 between Davis Park and Hancock Lumber. Work was completed in just under a month. Drivers and bicyclists appear to be enjoying the newly resurfaced road. Unfortunately, many cars and trucks are whizzing by, ignoring the posted speed limit. School starts this week, an added reason to slow down.

East Bethel

By WALLY RITZ

Can we say, "perfect?" From midweek 'til last Sunday, amazing weather.

In the daytime, nice and warm, plus a breeze to keep the bugs away. Nighttime, very good sleeping temperatures... oh, a touch of fall in the air?

Either way, it was perfect for Neil's Trapper's Weekend. I am sure Neil is still busy with the aftermath and will give you his feedback next week. My personal take, it was a "wow." So many folks, things to do and learn, yet all was peaceful. Nice job, Neil, and thank you.

On Sept. 8, there will be a service at the East Bethel Church. Do hope many of you can attend and I, too, will do my best to be there.

Please, don't forget about the information I asked and requested last week. It's a good thing, so call me at 824-3320 or e-mail han@megalink.net.

Now, a dedication to friends and you will know who you are.

A year has gone by since your passing.

We still see you driving by every day, smiling, joking and busy haying.

Have no words, yet, always in our hearts 'til forever-day.

'Til next week. Alder River Grange news The Grange will have a yard sale Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. There will be lots of stuff to look at and buy.

The East Bethel Church will have a service Sept. 8 at 2 p.m.

The unauthorized junk yards in town are taking up court time and Greenwood taxpayer money. Code Enforcement Officer Joelle Corey-Whitman will be inspecting the Grover junk yard on Rowe Hill Road to make a progress report to the court. Next week the Town of Greenwood will be going to court concerning the Henley junk yard on Snowmaking Pond Lane.

The Selectmen decided that a half-basement will be put under the new town office on the Gore Road. ADA regulations require that the entire building be handicapped accessible, and a full basement would have required an elevator.

A group of Greenwood residents from the Irish Neighborhood came to the recent Selectmen's meeting with concerns about the condition of their road. Right now Richardson Hollow Road is under repair. Let's hope the well-traveled Greenwood Road is somewhere on the road repair agenda. If we only had extra millions to repair all our roads.

Only one bid was received to supply sand to the Town for the winter. That was from Hadley's. He has done it for the last two years and will do it again this year.

The Town Office will be closed Labor Day.

Community Concepts is scheduling appointments for fuel assistance - LIHEAP. Call for an appointment at 1-800-866-5588. They will be at the Bethel Alliance Church (across from Telstar High School) on Tuesdays for the months of September and October 2013.

Greenwood City has less houses than I have fingers but it is "the city" no less. Come find out more about this area next Wednesday. The Greenwood Historical Society will have a program on the City Sept. 4, 7 p.m. at their building on Main Street. Come find out why we have our own city.

Ralph Mills and Lorraine Larson were in Portland Tuesday to pick up Lorene Mills at the Jetport.

Lorene was returning to her home in Locke's Mills after spending a week in Dallas, Texas, as a guest of Michael and Liv'ee Rehfield. She attended the John G. Lake Ministries Conference and worked with the children in the child evangelism unit of the conference. On Thursday she went to Sweden, to stay a few days with Eleanor Farrington, mother of her sister-in-law, Fran Adams, while Fran was out of town attending a wedding. Eleanor is still recovering from a severe diabetes episode.

Now is the time of year when you may see birds not native to the area. On a trip back from Portland, a friend and I saw two sandhill cranes standing in an Oxford yard. These very large birds are usually west of the Mississippi River and migrate from central Canada to the desert southwest this time of year. Seems they must have been blown off course. We told them they might want to head west.

Speaking of birds, I was asked how to tell male from female Canada Geese. It's hard to do. The sexes look alike and may be similar size. This is true for a number of bird species. They are monomorphic, which means there are no easily visible differences between male and female birds. Careful observation of birds' behavior may give clues about which individuals are which gender. Males usually migrate sooner, they sing/honk a lot, and may feed the females during mating. Both males and females may sit on the nest and tend the young once hatched. In other words, it is difficult to tell male from female Canada geese.

Albany

By KATHY BENNETT

Greetings from Albany on this beautiful afternoon as I am thinking about going back to work tomorrow. Really looking forward to seeing everyone.

Sorry to say I wrote a nice long column last week but I am not sure it made it in as I had some technical difficulties.

This week started out with a very enjoyable evening of music at the Town House. It was called Music Revival with 14 really great performers, Brad Hooper, Trailer Trash, The Milltown Road Show and The Bunch of Old Hipsies Band, and our local favorites, Jewel and Donnie. Hope Brad will decide to do another show, if so make sure you don't miss it! Brad you are a local favorite also!

I just talked to Jane Wardwell and she said my news made it in!

On Friday, Jen, Doug and I took Bella school shopping in Portland. We had a great time even though it was a long day.

Margaret Barton attended a bridal shower for Marissa Corriveau on Saturday at the Albany Church.

Until next week, be happy and enjoy the last days of summer.

Andover

By JANE C. RICH

The turnout last Thursday for the special town meeting was great considering it was a hot evening and August. The article for a new ladder truck for the Fire Department was soundly defeated.

The Selectmen are seeking names of residents who would like to serve on a Cemetery Committee. One of the objectives of the committee would be to update records of ownership and burials particularly in the west side of the cemetery. Call the Town Office at 392-3302 or e-mail to andover@megalink.net.

Although we're currently enjoying mild weather and would like to kid ourselves into thinking that winter is far away, the following will remind us that's not true. The Snow Valley Sno-Goers Snowmobile Club will hold its first meeting of the season on Wednesday, Sept. 4, 2013 at 7 p.m. at the clubhouse off Route 5 in Andover. All members and interested people are invited to attend. Club plans for the upcoming year will be finalized so this is a good meeting to check out club programs.

The People in Action group are sponsoring another free lunch on Tuesday, Sept. 10 at 12 noon in the CEB. Chef Bud Perry will once again be presiding over ham and scalloped potatoes, coleslaw, rolls and assorted desserts. And remember the most important part - it's free. We look forward to seeing you there.

The Hungry Kingdom project is a go for the school year 2013-14. This endeavor provides breakfast, lunch and snack milk for our school children and has been generously supported by people in Andover and other communities over the last several years and was first started by the First Congregational Church and has expanded to become a community-wide project. If you'd like to participate kindly send your donation to the First Congregational Church, PO Box 249 Andover, Maine 04216 and mark your check, HUNGRY KINGDOM. This program helps to insure that our children are well-fed and ready to devote their energies to their studies rather than feeling hungry and unable to function at their best.

The First Congregational Church will be holding a special worship service on Oct. 20 at 10 a.m. led by the Messengers of Hope, a Gospel quartet group with church pianist, Linda Dyer accompanying the group. The public is invited to attend this once in a lifetime event to enjoy hearing great old-time gospel music. Mark your calendars so you can plan your other activities around this happening.

I think I liked the "good old days" when school began the day after Labor Day. It just seemed like a good way to say summer is over and time to go back to school.

My brother, Steve McLain, attended the retirement and birthday celebration for Stan Howe this past Sunday. He said that he ran into several people to chat with while he was there. Hugh and I were unable to attend since we were headed for a graduation in Vermont.

News from the Bog Road - Celia Broomhall just received a promotion at work. She is now the Assistant Director of Nursing at Norway Center for Health and Rehabilitation. Congratulations, Celia.

Hugh and I traveled to St. Johnsbury, Vt. last Sunday to attend the Springfield College School of Human Services Graduation Ceremony. Michele Croteau received her Master's Degree in Mental Health Counseling. She has worked very hard and everyone is very proud of her. Also attending besides Tim (of course) were the grandchildren, William Chapman, Annie Chapman, Ajay Landry and Sidney Chapman. Michele's parents Leo and Ann Croteau were also there as part of the celebration.

The Gilead Historical Society will be having a yard sale over Labor Day weekend (Aug. 31 to Sept. 1). If the weather is good, the sale will be on the corner lot. If it is raining, the sale will move inside the town hall. This will be on Saturday, Sunday and Monday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

I was talking to Pauline Applin and she gave me some information about the upcoming flea market at the grange in West Bethel. The Pleasant Valley Grange is having an

School in SAD 44 got underway Wednesday, and students at the Crescent Park Elementary School arrived by bus, car and on foot. Shown here are fourth-graders Nicole Cox and Emma Albert. For more photos go to www.bethelcitizen.com

"end of the season" flea market over Labor Day weekend. The hall will be open on Aug. 30 and 31 as well as September 1 and 2 from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m., all four days. They have lots of glass and ceramics, small appliances, fabric and sewing notions, toys, holiday decorations, books and vinyl records, furniture, kitchen and camp utensils, and the always interesting odds and ends!

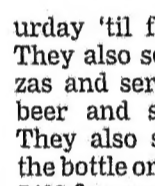

We decided that when someone stops at the GHS sale, we will mention their sale and they will do the same for the GHS.

Dave's Sauna (Old Route 26) is now under new management. They are open from 4 to 10 p.m., Wednesday through Saturday 'til further notice. They also serve great pizzas and serve the coldest beer and soda in town. They also serve wine by the bottle or glass. Call 743-7409 for more info. A great place to just relax playing pool or having conversation with family, friends and meet new friends.

Condolences to the family of Joyce B. Brown; our love and prayers to each family member.

Am not a happy camper with all that hot humid weather we had this week - I like the cooler fall weather myself. It's more refreshing and comfortable. Today there is a cool breeze and bright sunny skies, more to my liking.

The Country Trio played at the Mexico Rec. Park last evening - the band will continue to be there on Thursday nights until the weather gets too cool and damp. Come on down and enjoy an evening of great country and bluegrass music with a few oldies music thrown into the mix. The band is also thinking of doing a few Sunday afternoons on the good warm fall days ahead.

Construction right now is going good - hubby is back to work and enjoying it. He is a workaholic, always has been.

The band got together this past Wednesday for band practice here in our garage - friends came for the afternoon to listen. I always enjoy having folks pop in to listen and visit.

Birthday wishes to those I may have forgotten to list the first of the month. If you would care to share with our readers your birthday and/or anniversary month please get in touch with me.

It was nice spending a little time with Mary Jane and Derm Newell last Saturday. Good luck, Mary Jane, on your new venture.

Fairs are coming up real fast, one about every week now 'til the Fryeburg Fair - that's when it really takes a turn towards cold weather.

Well, dear readers, that's all from the valley this week. Stay well, enjoy each day.

By JOE BERNIER

The Upton Historical Society met Sunday. They discussed plans for the upcoming tour of Forest Lodge. The tour will be Sept. 7. To purchase tickets, or for more information, please call Charlotte (207-533-2061).

The Letter B Notch Riders have a day of trail work planned for Sunday, Sept. 1. They have a bridge to construct, water bars to partially fill, trail signs to post and some other work planned. Call me Saturday, Aug. 31, (533-2010) for more details. Their next meeting is Sunday, Sept. 8, 9 a.m. at the Upton House. If the club is going to have a fall ride and cookout, the plans will be made during that meeting.

The Upton Planning Board will meet Friday, Aug. 30, at the town office. Their workshop will start at 6:30 and then at 7 they will review applications.

Back Street has been graded and rock-raked. Good job and thank you. Call 533-2010 or e-mail backstjoe@gmail.com with your news.

By RICHARD GROVER

Last week I went on a four day trip "Upta Camp," as Bob Marley would say, with four fellas who had retired from or had experience in the Rumford paper mill. Three of them reside in Andover, one in Rumford, while I live here in Mason. I happen to be the "elder statesman." This is the same group I spent a few days with at Ray Cooley's camp on Loon Lake four or five years ago. We had so much fun at Loon Lake we wanted to try it again but at a spot a little closer to home.

Richard "Dicky" Merrill opened his camp on Roach Pond to the four others, Arthur Hutchins, Norm Weston, Gary Marston and me. We all did a little fishing and enjoyed many philosophical discussions about how to solve most of this country's problems, using a lot of descriptive four letter words: words like camp, fish, beer and rice, which Dicky wouldn't eat with his share of chili! I even surprised Arthur when I used the word "persnickety," which he claimed he only recently learned from his wife.

The five of us decided on a cooperative arrangement for living together. We each agreed to provide the primary food for one evening meal. Then we stopped at Indian Hill Market and purchased the ingredients to provide all the rest of the stuff we wanted to eat. Dicky provided eggs, cooking utensils, disposable dinnerware, silverware and towels. Then we divvied up the duties: we each prepared the evening meal that we provided: a casserole, a stew, chili, rice and cheese, and the final evening meal of leftovers from the first three nights. Gary cooked the bacon, eggs and sausage for all the breakfasts, while Arthur was "toastmaster." Lunch was either sandwiches or baked beans fixed by individuals or groups which came in randomly. We all took turns at washing and drying all non-disposable cookware and utensils.

Dicky insisted that I fix pancakes for our final Thursday morning breakfast, using the Aunt Jemima pancake mix. I fooled him by getting up at 5:30 a.m. and picking blueberries for the pancakes on Thursday morning, but he insisted that I use his method of adding the berries to the mix. You pour the batter on the griddle and then sprinkle berries in the batter before it starts to cook! Everybody agreed that the pancakes were good. Only later did I figure out that the reason Dicky insisted that I make the pancakes was that I brought a jar of homemade maple syrup!

Our conversations were filled with friendly joshes and jabs about every little "screw-up" or setback or method of doing something. It seemed like I got more than my share of "put-downs" because of my Air Force experience as a navigator! I finally got some respect on our final afternoon at camp when I pointed out an Air Force tanker aircraft refueling a large transport airplane, either a C-17 or a C-5, hard to tell which due to their high altitude as they flew over the lake.

Last Sunday, Pastor John Williams gave an unusual presentation to the young people before they went downstairs to Sunday School. It was a story where he compared Christians to Halloween pumpkins! He began by telling how you take a pumpkin from the garden, wash off all the dirt and then clean out all the "yucky stuff" inside; then you discard all the yucky stuff and make a beautiful new jack-o-lantern with a smiley face and a whole new outlook. Then he said God does the same thing with Christians; he helps them discard all their old yucky habits, and replace them with new positive ones.

The weeks go on. It's hard to believe that school starts Aug. 28 and 29, depending on the grade and the school. I am glad we have no young ones in school and that we are not taking classes this year. I am planning on taking a canning class at the extension, but that is all. What I really need is to relearn gardening and other skills I once had, including how to play piano and guitar and ride a bike. I feel they will all come back one of these days.

An update on the chicken and the duck. They now come to the front door if we haven't given them meaties in a timely matter. I think that it is actually the chicken who is the meaties fan. The duck just picks at them. The neighborhood squirrel is a different matter. She or he goes whole hog and tries to dismantle the birdfeeder that is most available.

Thursday, Aug. 29, ACOA will meet at the Waterford library at 10 a.m. It is a discussion group and open to all adult children of alcoholics and dysfunctional families. FMI please call 739-9115.

Saturday, Aug. 31, Scribner's Sawmill and Homestead Tour will take place from 1 to 4 p.m. on Jesse Mill Road in Harrison. Entrance is free but donations are welcome and are used for restoration of the site. FMI call 583-6455.

Sunday, Sept. 1 is the tenth anniversary of Rockie and David's dump wedding. No celebrations are planned as of yet. Check in Saturday at the Transfer Station.

Thursday, Sept. 5, Albany Church Supper. Doors open at 5 p.m. and dinner begins at 5:30 p.m. Adults are $7 and children 12 and under are $4.

Monday, Sept. 2 is Labor Day.

That is all for this week. Call or write in your news. I can be reached at: 739-9115.

BY SARA WRIGHT

It was only recently that I recognized that for me the Power of Place is always associated with a particular bird, animal or tree. Yesterday morning when I was walking my dog up a nearby woods road two loons were conversing across the northern end of North Pond. The call of the loon takes me back to early childhood when every summer my family spent a month at a lake with crystal clear waters in New Hampshire. This was a small lake with a cluster of summer camps cresting its rocky shores and the wildlife was abundant, but it was the haunting call of the loon that my mother began talking about each year before we arrived. My little brother and I were already on high alert listening for the sound of loons even as we rumbled down the rutted almost impassible road stopping to pick up ice at the ice house, and buying whatever fresh produce the farmer was selling. This family camp was situated at one end of the lake and belonged to my great grandmother and had been passed down from one generation to the next. It came complete with an outhouse named "Mrs. Murphy."

Jumping out of the old station wagon my brother and I would race through fragrant pines the big rock on which our camp was perched. Every year each of us hoped to be the first one to see a loon as we ran down the needle strewn path and rounded the corner that opened to the lake passing by the porch of the camp. We had a small wooden dock just below the big rock and looking down from it the pebbly waters were so clear that it was possible to see the rounded nests constructed by the sunfish that swam below. At least one loon was invariably swimming around in front of us a few yards away. Did our sudden appearance create a disturbance that would elicit a call from one loon to another? Perhaps, but my brother and I believed the loon was welcoming us. My mother would appear us behind in seconds and it was as if the place cast its spell over all of us as we listened for the next call. There was a swing on the porch that my mother insisted upon sleeping in every single night because it was from this vantage point directly above the lake that the loons would swim by conversing with one another. My mother claimed that she slept better at the camp than anywhere else because the loons sang her to sleep. There were no power boats then and everyone that used the lake had a row boat. The sound of oars dipping into still waters didn't upset these magnificent birds with their black and white waistcoats, who calmly swam around us as we fished or rowed from one camp to another; it was a common sight to see a loon with a chick on her back.

For the last couple of years I have been doing the loon count on North Pond, and look forward to this simple task with great pleasure probably because past and present merge when I am "officially" seeking to sight a loon. My friends on the pond have seen five Great Northern Loons (Gavia immer) - immer has its roots in the phrase "blackened ashes of a fire" this summer and one mother nested for the second year on a small island near Johnny's Bridge but wasn't there for long. Island nesting is preferred by loons because ground based predators like raccoons, mink and fox to name a few don't like to swim. Ospreys and eagles threaten from the air. When approached by a predator a loon is apt to rush at its foe and attempt to impale it with its powerful beak. I discovered a loon's nest in the cattails one year with one unhatched egg that had been broken into by someone who left the rest of the egg intact. Normally the loon lays two to three eggs and both parents care for the young. Whenever I am in my kayak exploring the marshy inlets I hope to see a mother with chicks but so far I haven't, at least, for the last two summers. A couple of years ago a kindly neighbor deeded over a small parcel of wetland to me and I spend a lot of time in that neighborhood. Last year it supported a heron rookery, the year before that wild orchids held sway, and this year I have seen two loons diving for fish just offshore as I paddled quietly around them serenaded by bullfrogs and anxious red winged blackbird parents with fledglings in tow.

The Great Northern Loon breeds in North America, Greenland, Iceland, and Great Britain. This species winters on the sea coasts or on large lakes and when I lived on Southport I often heard them calling from the river, especially in the early spring and fall. The solid bones of the loon, unlike most avian species, add weight and help it dive more efficiently for fish. A neighbor of mine who died a couple of years ago remarked that he didn't see why everyone seemed to love loons because they were such efficient killers. I had to laugh because this guy was a hunter himself.

There is something about the loon that evokes the mysterious side of nature and I think it is the loon's haunting call that captures the pull of the wilderness because it is considered by some as the "Spirit of the North." With eerie wails and wild tremolos the bird's voice echoes across the waters.

Watching a loon take to the skies is an amazing sight because the bird needs a long distance to gain momentum for take-off. When the bird lands on water it skims along on its belly to slow down rather than using its feet which are set too far back on its body. This positioning of the feet makes the bird a clumsy walker but is ideal for diving for and spearing fish of all kinds.

In Native American mythology the Chippewa believe that the loon created the world by bringing up mud from under the waters. Other tribes believe the loon to be a messenger from the spirit world. In British Columbia, repeated calls from the loon are thought to predict rain, and I have noticed that loons do seem to call more frequently before a summer storm approaches.

Whenever I visit my friends on the pond where I keep my kayak, we are always commenting on how frequently a loon will be swimming around their dock. I believe that loons know when friends are about, and may actually enjoy our company if we behave in a nonthreatening way. Unfortunately I have witnessed a few people in speed boats harassing the loon and one autumn day I actually intervened putting my kayak between a loon that was being tormented by local folks in a speed boat. The motive behind this bullying behavior escapes me since so many of us lean into the "Spirit of the North" with gratitude for having these birds in our lives for a few precious months each year.

Photographer recognized

Two photographs created by Trish Logan of Photography by Trish Logan, LLC, have recently been accepted into the General and Loan Collections of Professional Photographers of America. Logan's work will be on display at the PPA's Annual Imaging Exhibition in Phoenix, Ariz. In January of 2014. This exhibition is held in conjunction with Imaging USA, and annual convention of professional photographers and several photographic associations.

A panel of over 40 eminent jurors from across the United States selected the top images from more than 4,300 total submitted entries were judged against a standard of excellence, almost 1,700 images were selected for the General Collection and just over 500 (12 percent) were selected for the esteemed Loan Collection - the best of the best. The Loan Collection images will be published in the much-anticipated "Loan Collection" book, and nearly 200 selected General Collection images will be published in the "Showcase" book by Marathon Press. Logan's image entitled "Memories Lost" will be among the works published making this her second publication in a loan collection book. Logan was also published in 2012 for her image entitled "Mandala in Midnight Blue."

Both her images titled "Weathered" and "Memories Lost" will be in Phoenix alongside other photographic works from not only PPA's print competition, but also traveling and special invitational displays. These images constitute the world's largest annual exhibit of professional photography gathered simultaneously under one roof.

Professional Photographers of America (PPA), an international non-profit association, exists to assist its 22,000 members in achieving their professional, artistic and fraternal goals; to promote public awareness of the profession; and to advance the making of images in all of its disciplines as an art, as science and a visual recorder of history.

Senior College Players

Senior College Players resume this fall under the leadership of Ross Timberlake as director, and Lorrie Hoeh, assistant director. Ross and Lorrie along with a team of veteran players are excited about continuing and moving in new directions.

Current plans call for three plays to be performed in a 90-minute fall production. Newcomers and veteran players alike are invited to join the troupe. Ross plans to hold a special orientation for newcomers and assures everyone that the "senior theater" tradition of carrying scripts on stage will be continued. There are also roles for interested persons who wish to become involved as "behind the scene" volunteers, such as the stage crews, props, costumes and other tasks associated with a dramatic production. Ross said, "The goal is to create a wonderful learning experience for new members, veterans and volunteers as we prepare to entertain our friends and neighbors."

Ross brings extensive experience to his new role. He majored in theater at USM and has written and produced a number of plays, including the "Porch Plays" and "The Legend of Lefty" dinner theater play. He also co-founded the Bethel Performing Arts Project.

Lorrie's interest in drama started in grade school when she played Joan of Arc in a play put on by her French teacher, and it continued while studying at Hiram College in Ohio. Through her experience performing, she has developed a keen interest in directing but she still plans to continue her love of performing.

Weekly rehearsals will take place on Mondays beginning Sept. 16, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the W. P. Congregational Church. Dress rehearsals will be held on Nov. 18 and 19. Performances are scheduled for Friday, Nov. 22, and Saturday, Nov. 23, beginning at 7 p.m. in the Gould Academy Trustees Auditorium.

Senior College Players is a course sponsored by Western Mountains Senior College and registration will be held during WMSC's annual meeting on Sept. 4 from 5 to 7 p.m. at the W. P. Congregational Church. Those unable to attend the annual meeting may register at the Adult Ed office by calling 824-2780.

For more information about the players and volunteer opportunities, call Ross at 824-6545 or Lorrie at 824-2917.

Bethel Historical Society news

About 80 people attended the retirement / 70th birthday party for Stan Howe, which was held on Sunday, Aug. 25, under a large tent on the side lawn of the Dr. Moses Mason House. Amid sunny skies, and with a wide variety of refreshments (including two large cakes sporting edible photos of the Society's two buildings, plus other images), the occasion was a happy, and yet personal, tribute to the man responsible for the Bethel Historical Society's status as one of the most active and professional organizations of its type in northern New England.

The master of ceremonies for the afternoon event, which ran from 2 to 4 p.m., was Randall Bennett, the Society's Executive Director; many of the details for the actual event were expertly handled by BHS board member Jackie Bell and staff member Danna Nickerson. Financial support for the event was generously provided by Society member Bill Ullman of Mason Township.

After reading an official greeting from Senator Angus King, Director Bennett introduced Charlene Tremblay, from Senator Susan Collins' office, who read a letter of congratulations from the Senator. Other speakers included incoming BHS president Nancy Stowell White; State Representative Jarrod Crockett; State Historian Earle G. Shettleworth, Jr.; BHS president from 1978 to 1981 Catherine S.-C. Newell; and BHS president from 1981 to 1984 Donald G. Bennett. At the close of the official thank-you ceremony, Bennett asked Stan Howe to come to the podium where a plaque was unveiled signifying the naming of the first floor meeting and display area in the Mason barn as the "Howe Exhibit Hall" in his honor. Authorized by the Society's Board of Trustees, this room-naming recognition was deemed particularly fitting in light of the many lectures, demonstrations and exhibitions held at this location and that were organized by Howe. At the conclusion of the formal part of the afternoon event, Dr. Howe expressed his sincere appreciation to everyone for their kind efforts on his behalf. In typical fashion, he returned credit for the Society's success to its present members and volunteers, as well as those who have passed from the scene.

For their assistance with this noteworthy event, the Bethel Historical Society would also like to thank Jean Owen, Bettyann Hastings, Iris Roberts, Jan Stowell, Musa Brown, George Nickerson, Becky Kendall, Gerry Bell, Tammy MacDormand, Rosemary Bunn-Laban, Susan Kettinger, Rachel MacKay, Sally Taylor, and Elder Thomas and Elder Beck of the LDS Church.

Founded in 1966, the Bethel Historical Society is the largest and most comprehensive historical organization in its region. With nearly 1000 members, the Society fosters a sense of place—with a focus on western Maine and the White Mountain region of Maine and New Hampshire—by collecting, preserving, displaying and interpreting historically significant artifacts and documents for residents, visitors, students, and scholars. Through its exhibits, programs, events, and publications, the Society strives to make the region's history meaningful, accessible, and enjoyable. In 1974, the Society acquired the 1813 Broad Street residence of Dr. Moses Mason, which contains a period house museum, exhibit hall and research library. In 1999, the Society added the adjacent O'Neil Robinson House (1821) to its facilities for an expanded exhibits program, museum shop space, and administrative offices. For nearly fifty years, the Bethel Historical Society's wide-ranging achievements have been recognized by a number of state and national organizations.

AUG 29 2013

About 80 people turned out Sunday to honor Stan Howe for his 39 years of service to the Bethel Historical Society. Howe, now executive director emeritus, was presented with several recognitions, including from Maine's two senators and from the Maine House and Senate. Several people spoke about Howe's career as a historian and his service at BHS, including State Historian Earle Shettleworth, Jr., newly-elected BHS President Nancy Stowell White, former BHS presidents Don Bennett and Cathy Newell, current BHS Executive Director Randy Bennett, and state Rep. Jarrod Crockett. Randy Bennett announced that the meeting room in the Moses Mason House will be named the Howe Exhibit Hall. Shettleworth presented Howe with a University of Maine chair that formerly belonged to Robert M. York, a past State Historian, chair of the University of Southern Maine History Department and friend of Howe's. Pictured with Howe (seated in the chair) are, from left: Don Bennett, Shettleworth, Randy Bennett, White and Crockett. Howe holds the plaque with his name that will be displayed in the Exhibit Hall. For more information on the event see the BHS column.

OCEA-R scholarships

The Oxford County Education Association-Retired is honored to announce the following recipients for the OCEA-R Scholarships for the Class of 2013:

Alyssa Andrews from Oxford Hills Comprehensive High School plans to attend either Colby College or the University of New England majoring in Exercise Science or Liberal Arts. She is the daughter of Jeffrey and Roberta Andrews of Norway.

Megan Cavanaugh from Fryeburg Academy plans to attend Johnson State majoring in Elementary Education. She is the daughter of John and Lori Cavanaugh of Denmark.

Kurt Mason from Telstar High School plans to attend the University of Maine at Farmington majoring in English with a focus on Secondary Education. He is the son of Peter and Christen Mason of Bethel.

Alexis Noyes from Dirigo High School plans to attend the University of Maine at Farmington majoring in Early Childhood Education with a focus on Special Education. She is the daughter of Christopher and Samantha Noyes of Dixfield.

Each year the OCEA-R awards four scholarships in the amount of $500 each to four students who plan to enter the field of education. The recipients were chosen from an impressive group of applications. Please congratulate these young people when you see them.

GROWing Awareness weekend

Many local communities in Maine are faced with serious problems – a struggling economy, environmental threats, inequality, lack of health care, and many more. But local grassroots groups are meeting the challenge and working toward solutions to those problems. The tenth annual GROW (Grassroots Organizing Workshops) weekend, Sept. 27 to 29, 2013, at Bryant Pond 4H Camp in Bryant Pond, offers members of grassroots groups an opportunity to learn strategies needed to solve these problems.

The weekend is ideal for those newer to grassroots community action work but also will offer plenty of learning and networking opportunities for even very experienced organizers. Workshop topics include strategy development, influencing public policy, power analysis, overcoming oppression, listening and storytelling, and Organizing 101.

Cost for the three days in a beautiful setting in western Maine is $10 to $80 (based on ability to pay), including fresh, locally grown food and rustic but comfortable lodging. Childcare is also available for those who pre-register.

Those involved in grassroots projects and groups are invited to find out more and to come to GROW. For more information and a brochure, contact Jacqui Deveneau at (207) 284-3358 or jacquie50@yahoo.com, Iggy Brimmer at (207) 415-4458 or iggy19@riseup.net, or Larry Dansinger at (207) 525-7776 or rosc@psouth.net.

Walk to End Alzheimer's

The Alzheimer's Association's Walk to End Alzheimer's is a united movement to reclaim the future for millions. The Western Maine Walk to End Alzheimer's will take place on Oct. 5, 2013 at the Oxford Hill Comprehensive High School in South Paris. Nearly 100 people from the Western Maine area are expected at this year's event to raise awareness and funds to fight Alzheimer's disease.

Alzheimer's Association Walk to End Alzheimer's participants will participate in a three mile walk and will learn more about Alzheimer's disease, advocacy opportunities, clinical trial enrollment, and support programs and services of the Alzheimer's Association. Each walker will also join in the Promise Garden ceremony, a meaningful tribute to honor those affected by Alzheimer's disease.

The end of Alzheimer's disease starts here. Start or join a team today at alz.org/maine/walk or call 207-772-0115 or 800-272-3900.

About the Maine Walk to End Alzheimer's:

The Alzheimer's Association Walk to End Alzheimer's is the nation's largest event to raise awareness and funds for Alzheimer's care, support and research. Since 1989, the Alzheimer's Association mobilized millions of Americans in the Alzheimer's Association Memory Walk; now the Alzheimer's Association is continuing to lead the way with Walk to End Alzheimer's. In 2013, there will be 11 walks statewide over five weekends. The event is sponsored in part by Avita of Stroudwater, Cape Memory Care, Genesis HealthCare, Sedgewood Commons, Spectrum Medical Group and Woodlands Senior Living. Together, we can end Alzheimer's – the nation's sixth-leading cause of death.

About the Alzheimer's Association: The Alzheimer's Association is the world's leading voluntary health organization in Alzheimer's research, care and support. Our mission is to eliminate Alzheimer's disease through the advancement of research; to provide and enhance care and support for all affected; and to reduce the risk of dementia through the promotion of brain health.
